SWK 495: Human Rights and Social Development in Jamaica. (4 hrs.) The study of social development and social welfare efforts to address social problems in Jamaica along with agency visits and service learning opportunities.

SWK 695. Social Work Practice in Jamaica. (4 hrs.)

This two-week course provides a cross-cultural experience in which students will learn about Jamaican culture, social development, and social welfare. Students explore issues related to social justice, social development, and social welfare, along with the service delivery approaches that are being used to address the social needs of Jamaicans. Students will visit Jamaican social service agencies in many of the traditional fields of social work practice: family and children, health, mental health, education, disabilities, and corrections.
