ASSOCIATE DEAN FOR RESEARCH AND DOCTORAL EDUCATION- AVAILABLE FALL 2016

The Howard University School of Social Work is seeking highly qualified candidates for the position of Associate Dean for Research and Doctoral Education. The position will lead our strategic vision of prominence in research and doctoral education. The Associate Dean will advance this vision and its integration with the School of Social Work and the Graduate School, lead in the creation, support and ongoing evaluation of research centers, institutes and provide leadership for the role of community engagement, applied research, and other forms of public interface of our research capacity. Additionally, the position will serve as director of our Ph.D. program in social work. The Ph.D. degree in social work is granted by our Graduate School with the majority of coursework in our school.

Required Qualifications for the position include:

- Earned Doctoral degree (social work degree preferred)
- Record of accomplishments commensurate with appointment to a tenured faculty position (associate or professor rank)
- Record of excellence in research/creative activity
- Successful record of sustained extramural funded research as a principal investigator
- Record of excellence in graduate education, including both mentoring and classroom
- Significant administrative experience related to research and/or graduate education
- Awareness of new and emerging research and funding trends
- Demonstrated ability to develop and foster an interdisciplinary research and graduate education culture
- Experience in expanding research capacity in a unit or college

TO APPLY

For priority consideration, please submit a letter of application outlining research, practice and teaching experiences along with a curriculum vita and samples of scholarly work. Applications will be accepted until the position is filled. Priority consideration will be given to applications received by December 31.

The School of Social Work is located in the nation's capital and offers two MSW concentrations: Direct Practice and Community, Administration and Policy Practice. We offer specializations in health, mental health, family and child welfare, displaced populations and social gerontology. Additionally the School offers a Ph.D. in social work with specialized interest areas. The School embraces faculty scholarship that focuses on social and economic injustice, poverty, and disparities that impact quality of life, especially for African Americans and other historically oppressed populations.

The School has been continuously accredited during our 75 year history and is reaffirmed by CSWE through 2020. We are a highly ranked graduate program at the university and currently listed as one of the top 50 MSW programs in the country and in the top third of programs ranked by the U.S. News and World Report.

Howard University is an equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national and ethnic origin, sex, marital status, religion, or handicap in the administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarships, and loan programs.

Howard University, a culturally diverse, comprehensive, research intensive and historically Black private university, provides an educational experience of exceptional quality at the undergraduate, graduate, and professional levels to students of high academic standing and potential, with particular emphasis upon educational opportunities for African American students. Moreover, the University is dedicated to attracting and sustaining a cadre of faculty who are, through their teaching, research and service, committed to the development of distinguished, historically aware, and compassionate graduates and to the discovery of solutions to human problems in the United States and throughout the world. With an abiding interest in both domestic and international affairs, the University is committed to continuing to produce leaders for America and the global community.
